

Nowadays it is possible to research and access information on every topic a person can think of, and that is because of the easy access ever body (write: everybody) has to the internet.

Remarks

There is a much simpler and better way to express this idea.

Nowadays, because of the easy access to the internet, anybody can research and access information on any topic.

Hence some people argue that harmful information should be censored by governments. I do agree with this point of view to some extent.

Remarks

Why do people believe that the government should censor internet content? Because there is too much harmful content. It is not because anybody can access the internet.

So, you should write:

Since there is a great deal of harmful material on the internet, some people argue that the government should censor it. I agree with this view to some point.

Due to the easy access to the internet and the tremendous variety of information a person can obtain, it is considered dangerous to leave such access unmonitored. Furthermore, it is also almost impossible to predict what information would people gain access to and for what reason. For example, a person can research the method of producing a traditional bomb, which its components can be (write: of making a small bomb from components that can be) obtained online or even from available shops. Ensuring a (remove this; monitoring is uncountable; you can't use a with it) governmental monitoring and censoring of such websites, (remove this; do not put a comma between a subject and its verb) is a mitigation measure to reduce the risk of allowing somebody to build a traditional bomb.

Remarks

Write:

Ensuring governmental monitoring and censoring of such websites is a precautionary measure to reduce such risks.

Moreover, the internet is also used by many users to advertise violence through videos and ads. Teenagers are a common (write: regular) audience of such ads, due to the many hours they spend using the internet. Studies also showed that teenagers between the age of 15 and 20 are more likely to show violence towards their community due to the contents obtained from their time spent on the internet.

Sexual content is also commonly searched by people using the internet and can have a negative effect on the society, and it has been shown that sexual harassment is considerably high in the countries which does (write: do; the subject is the plural noun countries) not censor sex (write: porn/adult) websites. On the other hand, some people search sexual content for academic and research purposes.

Remarks

Add a sentence like the following here:

Hence, excessive censoring of such content can put them at a disadvantage.

In conclusion, I believe that governments should censor harmful content on the internet, but to also take into consideration the monitoring approach in order to (write: but also) ensure that the freedom of people accessing (write: people's freedom to access) sensitive information for academic and research purposes is being respected. (write: is not restricted)