

Urban migration is a well non-phenomenon (write: well known phenomenon), (remove this comma; do not put a comma before or after a preposition) with many metropolitan cities becoming more and more crowded.

Remarks

You may write:

More and more people are moving / migrating to cities making them congested / crowded.

Amongst various problems (write: problems faced by urban residents), housing is one of the most difficult to tackle for the local governments. To solve this, allocation of Parkland areas to build residential places is proposed by many .

Remarks

To solve this many people / local authorities propose the allocation of parkland for residential spaces.

I strongly oppose this and give my reasons for it, along with possible alternatives below.

Remarks

I strongly oppose this view. In the following paragraphs I give reasons for my opposition and suggest alternatives.

Or

In the following paragraphs, I will defend my opinion with valid arguments and suggest alternatives.

Parklands with their greenery, plants, children rides and pavements are quintessential need (write: needs) of residents. Children of a locality come together and play different games in the parks which definitely help (write: helps) them keep a (write: an) active lifestyle.

Remarks

Children of the neighborhood can come together and play different games in the parks and thus lead an active lifestyle.

Similarly, people of elder age group take walks and whole discussion (write: older people / seniors can go for a walk / can enjoy a stroll in the park and interact) with their peers in these open areas.

Remarks

To ask someone to take a walk is to tell them to go away. You go for a walk or enjoy a walk in the park.

Both these things enhance physical and mental health of the old generation.

Nevertheless, housing crisis is too evident (write: severe / serious) to be ignored, and viable solutions should be planned and executed. One possible solution could be demolishing old and dilapidated government buildings in the cities and rebuild (write: rebuilding) them as residential complexes.

Remarks

One possible solution could be demolishing old buildings and rebuilding them as residential buildings.

Or

One possible solution is to demolish old buildings and (to) rebuild them as residential spaces.

Connect infinitives to infinitives. The second to can be omitted.

Another option is to promote the building of multi-storey buildings by providing essential subsidies and incentives.

To conclude, housing crisis is a huge problem that needs immediate action. However, it should not come at the sacrifice (write: expense) of parklands, and options of revamping, old buildings and building new multi-story types should be considered instead.

Remarks

This should be another sentence.

Instead, the government should repurpose old buildings and encourage the construction of skyscrapers to tackle housing crisis.
